CLARION CELEBRATES . . .

125 years with festivity! The Autumn Leaf Festival rejuvenates the many students who are thirsting for a break in the academic routine. As a first year student, one has no idea what to expect. However, by your senior year, you learn to do your homework before the activities as well as how to persuade your professors not to give tests during that one week in the fall semester. It is this one special week that brings the university and the community together to celebrate Homecoming, friendships, and memories. Of course we cannot forget...

CLARION CELEBRATES . . .

125 years with spirit! What more obbi-ous example of spirit than our own Cheerleaders and Dance Team! Rain

they bring spectators out of the doldrums and into the "sunny-side" of life.
With words of cheer and steps to delight, the energy they exhibit is seized by the crowd. Their only reward after the long hours of practice is the burst of spirit from the scores of people for which they perform. The school spirit is on an all time high as...

125 years with innovation. Though Clarion University is firmly based on tradition, that does not stop the welcoming of new ideas and events such as the Mummers in the Homecoming parade. This edition of the Sequelle is dedicated to Clarion University's 125 years of tradition. It is our hope to flashback to memories of the past while adding memories of our own to this timecapsle we call a yearbook.

My Creed.

I Believe ,

1. That the greatest work to which any man or woman can be called is to engage in the education of the youth of our land.
2. That the greatest formation of character should be the chief aim of the teacher and that all intellectual training should be regarded as steps in the moral and ethical training of the Child. Dewey says, 'The best education aims to training the conscience.'
3. That the mind is a living, growing thing, and hence that teaching is an organic process, having as its aim the unfoldment of the powers that are in the mind and not putting in the mind that which is without.

4. No teacher worthy of the name will be for a moment satisfied with the past achievements, but will strive to become a better teacher day by day, applying better methods every succeeding day than he/she ever did before.

5. That teachers' conferences for exchanging views are of great benefit to all who take part in them.

6. That teachers should endeavor to come into closer touch with the community life around them.

7. That we are entering upon, or HAVE entered upon, an epoch in educational progress that is amazing in its far reaching effects, that no teacher or parent can afford to be indifferent to what is going on in the educational thought of the day, and that all philosophy of the ages must be made to contribute to the new science and art of education.

For most people the most culture they get is at a Clarion Golden Eagles' football game. Yelling hooray in freezing temperatures or roasting to death to see a first down in CUP's version of the Amazon Rain Forest is not the same as seeing the amount of talent that can be seen in the Marwick-Boyd Fine Arts building or in the Chapel. Think about it, when's the last time you gave a standing ovation at a football game? It's time to relive what happens when the curtain rises.

C L A R I O N

Sean Brennen

Every year Clarion University has the best to offer in music, theater and art. This year was no different. Students, faculty and guests made sure that this campus never suffered a dull moment. All around great performances were the norm. Consider "Pippen", the show choir performance and any of the showings at the Sanford Art Gallery. The student body was lucky enough to have a little "class" with their education.

ORCHESTRA

We have all heard the sounds of orchestra music and have been moved by it, even though we may think that we hate it. Chances are, the last movie you saw had orchestrated music as part of its score and you loved it. You just didn't know it.

Here is your chance to truly experience what you have probably been trying to avoid your entire life. This is just one more facet Clarion has to offer.

JAZZ BAND

Whether it is cool or hot, blue or white hot, it is always jazz and it is always good. This is the time Clarion University wants you to do more than sit back and relax. The CUP jazz band gives numerous concerts a year. Each one offers more than enough good music to get you on your feet and keep you there. If you go to one concert, you'll definitely want to be present for more. You'll be back again, again and again.

CONCERT CHOIR

Not every type of good music has to be played on your favorite radio station. Clarion University's concert choir gives a number of performances each year to ensure that students are familiar with music with a more classic edge. These pictures give a glimpse of shows that were more than just your "top forty" tunes. You may have missed out on the opportunity of seeing the great performances shown in these pictures, but there is always this year.

SHOW CHOIR

Okay, maybe classical and jazz music are not your type of hype. Possibly you like a little movement with your music, or at least movement other than your own. Show choir is just what you have been waiting for. Talented people with songs in their hearts and smiles on their faces sing AND dance. If that's not enough, they also have great costumes. Clarion's show choir has something to move everyone. It may even move you into auditioning for the next season's performance.

MARCHING BAND

If you have ever wondered what got the Clarion Golden Eagles moving during the football games, just ask the marching band. Each football game the band proves they can play more than just the fight song. Half-time is filled with new songs, movie themes, and lots of action from the majorettes, dance team and flag line. GO BAND!!!

DANCE CONCERT

Mike Ross

Along with biting winds, blowing snow, and the ice all over "Cardiac Hill", winter time also brings Clarion University's Dance Concert. Dances from every realm and from around the world are performed by CU's own students. This year's performance featured dances from the Mid-East and Spain, as well as, Clarion's own rendition of the musical "Hair".

The dance concert also gives faculty the chance to produce and choreograph their own version of a musical variety show. Every year the performances get better. As the pictures show, this year was the icing on the cake.

MADRIGALS

When most people think of Christmas they think of family, gifts and winter break. Another thing to consider is the annual Madrigals Dinner. What better way to bring in the season than to hear traditional Christmas carols sung by talented CU students in traditional dress. Step back in time to enjoy something similar to the Christmases of old.

THEATRE

Nothing brings more people into Marwick-Boyd than the news of a play. Whether it be a comedy, drama, musical or anywhere in between, people flock to the campus in droves. Faculty, students and Clarion citizens alike usually can't wait until the curtain rises. Here is what happened when it did during the 1992-1993 school year.

THE SEAGULL

Staff

Many of us have seen a sea gull at beach or elsewhere. We are filled with a sense of peace when we watch it soar among the clouds. But have we ever stopped to wonder what our lives would be like without that inner peace or to be tormented all the way down to the soul. "The Seagull" examines these times and the people who go through them.

THE RAINMAKER

At the time of the drought, the Curry's didn't believe in romance, dreams or magic. Then came the Rainmaker. (As though Clarion needed anymore rain). This was a play that had it all...romance, comedy and a great cast. Too bad theater performances can not be repeated for those of you who missed it. At least you can still look at the pictures

PIPPIN

Lisa McCartney

"Life should be something more than long", was the theme for the 1993 performance of "Pippin". The musical, which is based upon the book by Roger O. Hirson, was the winner of five Tony Awards when it was brought to the Broadway stage by producer Stuart Ostrow and director, Bob Fosse.

Pippin is the first born son of the ruler Charlemagne. He goes through many trials while searching for the meaning of life in 780 AD. Pippin wants to be a good son, soldier and ruler, but learns he must first be true to himself. Although this story is about a prince, according to director, Marilouise Michel, it could be any man.

With great songs, dance numbers, and the presence of Dr. Mary Hardwick (who hasn't graced the stage in ten years), "Pippin" proves that a play should be something more than good.

I HATE HAMLET

Lisa McCartney

Surely upon reading this, some of you claimed that you hate Hamlet, too. Some of you can probably go further and admit that you hate Shakespeare as well. But if you missed this play, you missed one of the best parts of Shakespeare and Clarion...humor. The leading character attempts to run from the role of Hamlet and gets stuck with the ghost of John Barrymore instead.

Clarion University doesn't just provide entertainment for its students during the fall and spring semesters. It also offers a series of plays for the students enrolled in classes during the "dog days of summer". And you thought summer in Clarion just meant more humidity.

BARNUM

Welcome to the "greatest show on Earth", not to mention the second presentation of Clarion University's Summer Theater Series. Based on the book by Michael Stewart, Barnum tells the story of Phineas Taylor Barnum and his infamous traveling circus through the musical talents of Clarion University's performers, which were under the direction of Dr. Mary Hardwick of the Speech Communications and Theater Department. The cast of characters leads you inside Barnum's humble beginnings in 1835 and through the details in his sometimes troubled life, including his partnership with James Bailey.

The music for the show, which features lyrics by Mark Bramble and an underscore by Cy Coleman was handled by a magnificent and musically talented cast. Featured was John Burja the ringmaster, Paula White-Roney as Joice Heth, the oldest woman in the world and Brian Bazala as P.T. Barnum.

Rooting for the next touchdown, Marilyn Murnyack shows true team spirit. "Seeing the scoreboard lit in our favor lets me know we, the cheerleaders, are doing our job."

Showing off for the crowd on Activities Day, Wayne gives Lisa a lift as Brian looks on. The stunts are an exciting part of the squad's performances.

During a break in practice, Brian Yannarelli and Wendi Lutheran share a relaxing moment in front of the camera. "Practice is tough, but seeing the Eagles' fans waving their fists and hearing them shout out along with us drives all of us to work harder," Brian said.

Pom poms raised, the cheerleaders hit their stride as they move their feet to an energized cheer.

F A S T P A C E D

As Chris Singleton crosses the finish line, his time is recorded by a standbeyer. Whether in practice or at a cross country meet, the runners are constantly trying to improve their time with the hopes of running the fastest they can. This takes dedication to the sport and alot of desire to practice in the early morning or the late evening.

Lisa Griffo gives Coach Ron Wiser a quick glance as she sets her stop watch to time herself. Its important for the runners to keep a record of their running times throughout the season, during a meet, as well as practice too. This will be one of the factors that lets her know if all of her practice has paid off. "Practice is hard, but it unifies the team and pays off in the end," Griffo said.

Concentrating on crossing the finish line. Lynn Baluh paces herself. Self-discipline is something that a runner must learn for him or herself. This requires eating foods that are packed with proteins and carbohydrates to insure maximum energy levels at their meets. It also means getting up to practice at all odd hours of the day. Why do the athletes do this? Because they love the sport.

LOOKING BACK

For 125 years, Clarion has been an institution of great change. It's true that the name of the university and the campus no longer appear as they did in the past. Even more importantly though, the students have changed.

For instance, back when CUP was Clarion State Normal School, students were much more conservative. They followed rules such as, "Students should return promptly at 10:00.", "Ladies are not permitted to receive or entertain gentlemen in their rooms.", "Students will not go outside the limits of the school property in couples or in groups of the opposite sex without having permission of the principal.", to name a few.

As the years progressed, Clarion State Teachers College began to become less restrictive. Students belonged to many clubs and organizations. They felt more free and independent because the social climate was beginning to change.

By the late 60's and early 70's, students at Clarion State College openly expressed their opinions on topics such as war, drugs, and sex. Fashions and trends of this era also reflected the freedom students had.

In the past decade, students at CUP have been able to do and say what they wanted. They question the decisions of university leaders and explore their own ideas; a far cry from the days of 1867. ♦Jeffrey Tillich

ANOTHER DAY

The alarm just went off. It's 7:20 a.m. That 8:00 class doesn't seem very important right now. You hit the snooze button.

It's now 7:27 a.m. You have a quiz today! You jump out of bed, get ready in 10 minutes, eat a pop tart, and rush off to class.

You went out the night before and didn't study for the quiz. Oh well! You would have failed it anyway.

After your class, you notice that the sun is shining. You decide to sit outside the library for awhile. Before you know it, it's time for class again.

The professor begins the boring lecture, and you begin to fall asleep. Soon you wake up and discover that the entire class has left, and you're there by yourself. You decide to go to Chandler for lunch.

On your way, the earlier sunshine turns to rain, and you forgot your umbrella. You get drenched.

At the cafeteria, you eat lunch very fast because you don't want to taste the food. Then you sit there for an hour and a half talking to friends and pouring salt on the table.

You decide to skip the rest of your classes and go back to bed. By the time you get up, it's time to do the evenings homework. So you work your butt off for two or three hours, and then it's time for bed.

It will be the same routine tomorrow because this is everyday student life in Clarion. ♦Jeffrey Tillich

VERY TRENDY

Fashion is a prevailing style of dress during a particular time period. Clarion students have always demonstrated different fashion trends. These fads come and go like some sort of craze.

What's in fashion is constantly changing. For example, the 60's set a variety of fads and fashion trends. Tye-died shirts, ripped jeans, and peace signs are only a few things popular during that era. The 70's brought about loud patterns, wide collars, bell bottoms, and platform shoes. The 80's saw clogs, parachute pants, "heavy metal" T-shirts and "Madonna wanna be's", setting the scene. The 90's fashions are still being defined. The most popular trend so far is retrowear, wearing all the things just mentioned.

Personal style plays a big part in the colors and patterns that are worn. While most Clarion students dress on the conservative side, there are many who are obviously slaves to fashion.

PIG OUT!

Although Clarion is a small town, it hosts a variety of appetizing restaurants. The degree of formality is entirely up to the consumer. The range of dining goes from the casual setting of McDonalds to the formal surroundings of the Timberlands at the Holiday Inn. Many popular chain stores such as Wendy's and Subway are nestled in the borough next to the unique home cooking of other restaurants like Vinny's and P.C. Crackers.

Many businesses in Clarion offer discounts or coupons that cater to the college students. This is always appreciated by those of us who suffer from lack of funds.

Hopefully, the future will bring the long desired Taco Bell or LittleCeasers to the community. But until then, Clarion students have many different alternatives to eating at the cafe.

BOTTOMS UP!

While attending Clarion University, many parents think their cherished children are hitting the books and studying for their 4.0 Q.P.A. But what these naive parents don't know is that there is another force at work. .. the Clarion bar scene. Given any night of the week, CUP'S "over 21" finest are studying for their night classes... chugging 101 taught by Dr. Anhieser Bush and "lick it, slam it, suck it," taught by Dr. Jose Que' ruo.

The week often starts Tuesday night when the partiers collect their change for quarter drafts at the University Inn. To help get over that Wednesday hump, many students pack into the 5th Ave. for pitchers of their favorite brew. The Roost on Thursday nights is a great way to get prepared for the serious weekend parties. Captain Loomis is the hot spot on the weekends, but be prepared to drink your blue maui like a fish.

The semester ends with a huge bang as the traditional senior walk starts at the Tavern and strolls throughout the downtown ending at the Roost.

BAD HABITS

When a college student thinks of a party, most of them assume that alcohol will be present. Although drinking on and around campus is forbidden, there are many risk takers who chance it. Many of these drinkers are underage and do not believe they will be caught. Those that are caught, face at least a $150 fine and a three month license suspension.

Freshmen who have never drunk before are especially at risk. At any particular party, there will most likely be a significant amount of underage drinkers present. And of course, there's always the ones who haven't learned to handle their alcohol or just had one too many and ended up praying to the porcelain god. The next day, these people are seen drinking alka-seltzer and swallowing aspirin for breakfast.

Along with drinking, many people have the habit of smoking. Some people smoke because they are under pressure, others do it because their friends do it, and then there's the other category of those who smoke only when they have been drinking. A cigarette in one hand and a beer in the other is a common occurrence for these social risk takers.

Everyone looks forward to the weekend parties; however, a little common sense and some knowledge about the risks of smoking and drinking will allow everyone to have a good time.

IT'S MY HOME

Living on campus is an entirely different world compared to living off campus. As a Freshman, you must live in the dorms. It forces you to meet new people. This is when most college students begin to build life-long friendships. Along with dorm-life, you get a full meal package (which helps you achieve the "Freshman Fifteen"), many exciting late-night fire drills, and an RA to keep a closer eye on you than your parents. Not only do you get the pleasure of these experiences, but you also get to share a bathroom with at least twenty other people.

Off campus; however, is an entirely different ball game. It compares to the time in high school when you had your license and could drive to school while other people rode the bus.

Living off campus gives you various meal plan options so that you don't have to be subjected to Chandler for 20 meals a week. Also, as an off-campus student, the extra walking makes you the most physically fit students in Clarion. Whether it be an apartment, house, or trailer, you will be lucky enough to have your own bathroom. Too bad you have to clean it yourself.

There are distinct differences between living on and off campus, yet most of us could not survive college life with out the experience of the dorms as Freshman.

WHAT'S RACS

RACS stands for Returning Adult and Commuter Students. Everyone thinks that RACS is for the older commuting student. Actually, it's for the traditional student as well. RACS provides a common place for the commuter students to associate between and after classes. RACS students can often be found hanging out, studying, or relaxing in their new lounge on the second floor of the Gemmell Complex.

The purpose of RACS is to coordinate their affairs with all aspects of campus life. RACS tries to make the transition to college easier for commuting and returning students by providing an association that shares common goals and concerns of the commuting students.

RACS holds many activities each year. Some of these activities include a banquet and a pizza party during finals. It also raises money for scholarships through such things as bake sales.

There are about 150 students currently involved in RACS. However, their membership has the possibility to reach numbers as high as 1000 students.

GET BUSY

Every year at the beginning of the fall semester the groups, greeks, and clubs on campus gather to let everyone know what their organization's about. Activities Day is a time when anyone not involved with extra-curricular activities can ask questions and sign up. This event also marks the start of fall rush for the sororities and fraternities on campus.

This year, the University Activities Board sponsored a button factory where students could get a picture taken of themselves and their friends to be displayed on key chains or magnets by their owners. A caricature booth provided students with a drawing of themselves with their funniest characteristics.

The main attraction of the day was a concert given by four bands from surrounding areas. The program was held on the new stage outside the Gemmell Student Center. The performers included: Inside Out of Johnstown, PA; Whiskey High, from Pittsburgh, PA; Ask a Stranger; and lastly Another True Story.

HOT SPOT

Not only is the James C. Gemmell Complex the newest place on campus, it is also the hottest. For those who love to exercise, the complex offers 3 glass racquet ball courts, aerobics class and the state of the art nautilus machines to pump up your muscles.

The new and expanded book store offers everything from school supplies to birthday cards, computer to greek items. There is also the adjacent Clarion Express shop for the convenience of the students. The Riemer snack bar offers a variety of food from pizza, deli and hamburger which can be paid for by the new flex dollars.

Many fun and interesting events take place in the multi purpose room including: Sister Souljah, Houdini, laser light show and UAB offers the weekly movies and CAB's dances.

But not all fun and games are done in Gemmell Complex, the Call, UAB, Sequelle and Student Senate all conduct business in their new offices. Also having offices are student activities, Greek Life and student affairs.

Students should take advantage of everything the complex offers because this is a building strictly made for the student body.

LET'S PARTY

The Autumn Leaf Festival which began on Sunday, October 11, brought many activities to Clarion. On campus, various events such as the 9th Annual CUP / ALF tennis tournament, a battle of the bands contest, Homecoming dance, and the Best of the Mummers presentation, brought a sigh of relief to the monotonous fall semester.

Off campus, there were even more ALF activities. The downtown carnival which featured exciting rides, challenging games, and delicious food brought sizable amounts of people to the community. Also, side walk sales at the local shops, pony rides, and the car show provided enjoyment for all.

Although, all of these events provided entertainment, most people would agree that the parties are what made ALF week a success. ALF week climaxed with the parade and Homecoming game.

AUTUMN FUN

The festivities of autumn were set in motion with the start of the 1992 Homecoming celebration. The activities began with the Homecoming dance in Gemmell. The announcement of the queen, Marnie McCluskey was made by Student Senate president Brian Hoover.

The court consisted of senior representatives, Sharon Grove and Andrea Maitland. The juniors attendants were Marilyn Murnyack and Sandra Kane. Sophomore attendants were Shelly Eisenman and Tanya Harteis and freshman attendant Jennifer Janoss.

Despite a nip in the air, thousands of Clarion alumni, students, and community members lined up along Main Street to cheer along the floats, bands and Zem Zem Shrine units at the 39th annual ALF parade.

Following the parade, the victorious Golden Eagle football team defeated the Lock Haven Eagles 42-14.

Along with Homecomings of the past, this year's celebration brought many new memories.

CAST YOUR VOTE

For a young person who is in college, America can be a scary place. The environmental, economic (job market), and social problems that plague our nation are being passed on to the young. The students are reacting to these problems with the logical first step; they're voting.

The usually silent voice of the younger generation is finally coming out of the closet and being heard. The message that students are sending to America is simple; they want a change and they want it now.

Students want a better than 1 in 6 chance of securing a job outside the food industry. They want a clean, healthy environment in which to live and raise their children. They want to be able to live without fear of inadequate health care. It would seem that they only want a little happiness in the supposed greatest country of the world. This is not too much to ask by any standards.

To vote is to have a voice and the voices united in November to insure a change in America. Let us pray these voices never fade.

ROCK & ROLL

Clarion's Seventh Annual Battle of the Bands competition took place on February 2, 1993. This year's battle had six bands; Nightshift, Barking Spiders, Nutt-N-Honey, Komotion, Mr. Copen and 52nd Street and Mr. Burrough's Athletic Band. The bands competed to see who would win the modest $150 first prize. Second and third place contestants each win an equally modest $100.

The Battle of the Bands displays the musical talent of Clarion University students. Only the best of Clarion's bands have the privilege to perform on stage at the Battle.

The Battle of the Bands takes place in Marwick-Boyd Auditorium. On that night, the enthusiasm of the crowd can be felt and heard throughout the auditorium.

Each band has fifteen to twenty minutes to show their stuff. Bands try to woo the audience with their different styles of music and different performance techniques.

When the show is all over, the bands wait patiently for the judges final decision. This years third place winner was Nightshift. Second place was taken by Komotion. The lucky winner of this years title was Mike Copen and 52nd Street Band.

Battle of the Bands is an eagerly anticipated event in Clarion each year. Who knows? Maybe next year you'll be in it.

FIRST HAND

Remember your first two and a half days in Clarion? Orientation is a necessary evil that all Clarion students remember. Everyone is herded around campus to attend several meetings that help with the adjustment of college. Aspects of orientation include, finding out where buildings are and how to do things like scheduling. Of course, the practical lessons must be learned on your own. For example, you discover the necessity of having an umbrella with you whenever you go outside, even if the sun is shining when you leave.

The folklore of the campus is passed on at this time. Has anyone ever seen the rope hanging in the chapel or been kissed on the bench of true love?

The introduction to cafe food is carefully planned so that no one will realize the true picture until it is too late. It's certainly a surprise when you are forced to go to the pasta line at every meal. Suddenly, moms cooking is something that you crave daily. All in all, orientation gives students their first glance at college life.

SPRING BREAK

Each year, college students everywhere look forward to spring break. It's a chance to break away from the drudgery of homework, tests, and Clarion weather, which most students hate.

While many people simply go home to relax, others venture to popular vacation spots like Daytona Beach, Fort Lauderdale, and Panama City. Vacation packages for these places are sold on campus. Shedding winter finery for skimpy swimwear is top priority among these beach seekers. These are the people who have that tan in March while everyone else is as pale as a ghost.

Other students make plans to just go someplace other than school or home. This year, many campus organizations used spring break as a chance to explore new places. The Honors Program trekked to Toronto to experience big city life in Canada. The Terra Club went to North Carolina to get some on the spot learning in Earth Science.

Whether you went to Florida or Fryburg, at least spring break gave everyone a chance to sit back and take it easy for a while.

HIGHER POWER

As a student at Clarion University, life can become very stressful. Quite often, students are overcome by the responsibilities that are thrust upon them. Being away from family and friends, however enjoyable at first, can be tough. Most problems, for both Christian and Non-Christian denominations, can be solved through religious faith. Many different religions are represented in the student body here at Clarion. There are several programs which students can join to help get through stressful times or to combat the dwindling spirit.

These include:

- The Newman Association
- Jewish Student Association
- Koinonia Christian Fellowship
- Fellowship of Christian Athletes
- United Campus Ministry

All of these organizations are here for the students, and all denominations are, or will be, represented. You can share faith, fellowship, and fun with any of these groups. The United Campus Ministry will also act as a liaison agency between students and local churches.

If you feel that God, Allah, or whoever holds your faith has abandoned you in your time of need, you can surely find him in the fellowship of one of these organizations.

CULTURE SHOCK

The population here at Clarion is becoming more diverse. There are many international students from among 40 different countries that can be seen on campus. There are students from Greece, Saudi Arabia, Brazil and India to name a few. These students travel great distances to get here and learn new aspects of our culture and language during their stay.

Clarion tries to make them feel welcome by holding special programs. The Clarion International Association has presented cultural nights that explore history and customs.

Another organization on campus that concentrates on Ethnic students is the Office of Minority Affairs. They try to make everyone feel comfortable on Clarion's campus. Most of the people that the Office of Minority Affairs assist are African American students, but a wide variety of other ethnic students are served as well. They help with scheduling classes, assigning advisors and deal with any other problem that may arise. Both of these organizations are very important, and it is a benefit to the campus life to have these ethnic students here.

ENDING VIOLENCE

In a call to end violence against women and children, a rally and vigil called "Take Back The Night" was held on April 1, at the Clarion County Courthouse. Public figures and survivors of both domestic violence and sexual assault spoke on the subjects.

Often times a small town will give a person a false sense of security. When we feel secure, we tend to lower our defensive barriers; that is when most people fall victim to sexual assault. Clarion County was no exception. There was a total of 142 new victims last year, many of which could have been prevented by awareness.

Domestic violence and child abuse are an ever-present part of all communities. The degree to which these types of violence occur in this area may be marginal, but they do exist.

Learning the facts about violence is the essential first step in helping to get rid of it. "Take Back The Night" was designed for this purpose.

EARTH DAY

The 1990's have become known as the age of environmental awareness. Wherever you go, recycling bins can be found to help reduce the waste currently dumped into landfills.

Earth Day is a day that has been set aside to remember Mother Earth. It is traditionally celebrated on April 21st. However, Clarion held an Earth Day jam sponsored by WCCB on April 24th of this year.

The concert took place in the Gemmel multi-purpose room due to rain. The bands played from noon until six o'clock. Mr. Burrogh's Athletic band, The One Who Waits, Simon Sez, Nutt & Honey, Para Normal, Jim Black and Stu, and Black Cat were the bands who dazzled the audience with their talents.

This event was the third annual concert held at Clarion University. Even though the official Earth Day occurs only once a year, it is important to remember the environment throughout the year.

SAFE SEX

AIDS, syphilis, and other STD's are becoming more common on college campuses every year; Clarion is no exception. With the increasing threat of these diseases, safe sex is becoming an important topic across the country.

Words such as condoms, abstinence, and "NO" are now a part of every college student's vocabulary. The health center on campus now sells condoms to students and provides literature on a variety of STD's.

It's no secret that most college students are sexually active. By asking your partner about his/her sexual history, you could prevent any type of disease to spread. Open and honest talk is not something to be ashamed of.

By learning something about STD's and how they spread, people can make good choices when it comes to sexual activity. Acting responsibly and communicating with your partner could save your life in today's sexual society.

CAMPUS SAFETY

Most people do not realize all of the things that the Public Safety department does for the campus. One of the major jobs of the officers is to attend to "space requests"; making sure rooms and buildings are unlocked for the people who need to use them. This may go unnoticed unless you've arrived at a meeting to find that you can't get into the room. They also make sure that the buildings are checked and locked for the evening.

Another job of the Public Safety officers is to report to the residence halls where fire alarms have been activated. They must check to make sure that an actual fire does not exist.

Everyone has probably returned to their cars to find a bright pink ticket nestled under their windshield wipers. Parking tickets are issued to ensure only those who purchased permits from Public Safety park on campus. In case you were wondering where your five dollars goes from those tickets, it goes into a general fund.

Lastly, they patrol the campus as well as the stadium to ensure the safety of all the students. Although not everyone appreciates Public Safety, they are a vital part of the campus.

ACADEMICS -- WHAT IS IT?

Bye-Bye bucks!

"Study time, last minute cramming, and listening to that never-ending lecture. Just a few of the necessary evils, between parties and other leisure activities, in the life of a college student. # WOMEN'S STUDIES MINOR

Brief History. In the early 1970's women's studies courses first appeared in Clarion's curriculum. Later, in response to student demand and for more women's studies courses, the Presidential Commission on the Status of Women decided to establish a program of its own by 1987. In 1992 that goal became a reality. Clarion is now part of a group including more than 100 colleges and universities nationwide offering students the experience of continuing their education in the context of a women's studies program.

What is Women's Studies? Women's studies is an investigation of the growing research and scholarship about women in many different disciplines. The program enables students to learn about and contribute to that body of knowledge.

The program provides an opportunity for students to study the contributions of women to scholarship and society, as well as to understand the issues facing women and men today.

Why Minor In Women's Studies?

-- To examine knowledge, societal issues, and values through a feminist perspective, and integrative multidisciplinary approach, and a stance that emphasizes critical inquiry.

-- To learn about the contributions women have made to society, including, but not limited to, scholarship.

-- To prepare for living in egalitarian family structures and work environments and for coping with and helping to alter structures that are not egalitarian.

What is Required for a Minor?

Any undergraduate student enrolled in a baccalaureate program may minor in women's studies. Students must complete 18 credits of women's studies including WS 100: Survey of Women's Studies; WS 490: Seminar in Women's Studies; and at least six other credits at the 300/400 level. Course offerings include: ART 216: Women in Art; PSY 220: Human Sexuality; HIST 230: Women in the United States; SCT320: Gender and Communication; PSY 340: Psychology of Women; PHIL 357: Philosophy and Women; ENG 365: Images of Women in Literature; HPE 370: Women in Sports; SOC 452: Sex, Gender, and Socialization; MKTG 463: Women in Marketing.

Social topics courses, co-op credit, and internships are also available.

BATTLE FOR THE CLASSES

Twice a year all students must go through the agony of preparing a schedule for the upcoming semesters. For some, the process is relatively painless; figure out how many credits you have, get the class listing and registration sheet, fill out what classes you need or want, discuss your schedule with your advisor and have her/him sign it, call in at the prescribed time and boom your done. That's all! Easy isn't it? Well for others the process is traumatic to say the least. Closed classes, hard-to-find advisors, holds on files, conflicting class times, and scheduling times during class (usually when you have a test) all make registration just a l-i-t-t-l-e bit aggravating. Somehow, though we may age a few years, we all live through the process and end up with a semi-adequate schedule for the next semester.

The most recent twist to the scheduling process is the Teleregistration system. Instead of ganging up on the secretaries (who I pitied at registration time), schedules can be done by computer via a touchtone phone. Later schedules can be printed out at the students' convenience. The Course View computers located in several places can also be used to see what classes are closed and how many seats are left in those few that are still open. Some students view the Teleregistration as a quicker and easier way of scheduling while others like the old fashioned personal touch better.

PRE-SUMMER SESSION

Last May Clarion University of Pennsylvania held its first pre-summer session since 1981. With an enrollment of 225 students (191 undergraduates, 31 graduates, and 3 post-baccalaureate), the effort was considered an overall success. Early feedback from the registrar showed that of the 14 classes scheduled, 11 had sufficient enrollment to be held.

The success of the three week (May 11-31) plan can be contributed to its benefits for students and faculty alike. The session provided students with an opportunity to take classes that might not be offered in the regular summer sessions and to earn 5 credits while still having time for the ever needed summer jobs. Faculty members were offered the chance to teach courses that normally might not be scheduled during the summer.

The pre-summer session was well put together and ran smoothly for everyone involved. Students arrived ready for a small group, high intensity learning situation. Hopefully this success will be mirrored this May and every other summer to come.

THE PRICE OF A GOOD EDUCATION

How much are you willing to pay for a good college education? For many students the answer would be, "A lot less than I'm paying now." Many complaints are made about new fees, rising old fees, and high costs (along with many other items). All grumbling aside, the money from these fees is put to good use for the students, the school, and is the same as, if not less than, that charged by many other state universities. From the raise in tuition to the graduate fee, the money is needed to overcome budget cuts so Clarion University can improve in the future.

One complaint was the increase in the Instructional Support Fee (ISF) for Spring 1992. The increase from six to ten percent raised the fee from $78.84 to $141.40 per full time student. That's an additional $62.56 tacked on to the tuition from the last semester! Why? What good does it do? Well let me help out.

The increase generates around $278,000 additional revenue. Out of that about $100,000 is put towards instructional commitments such as classes, upkeep for instructional equipment, improvement of library holdings, student teacher supervision, and nursing supervision. So? If it weren't for this money some students would have to delay graduation and some programs would have limited enrollment. I thought it was hard enough to get into many classes! Another $40,000 will be used to renovate Carlson classrooms. More classrooms may mean more class sections, which could mean more open seats. . . sounds good! The remaining money is put towards unanticipated expenses. Hmm, I think I'll leave that one open for complaints.

By the way, five state schools already have had ISF fees at ten percent.

The 1992-93 operating budget was submitted in September. In general, tuition would go up $100 for in state students and 25% for out of state students for the spring. No way! Yes, but the university has to deal with $45.2 million in major cuts in operating and personal costs. Before you get out those tiny violins remember that those cuts usually have a bad effect on the students in some way. For instance, a $2.6 million reduction in anticipated personnel costs and operation expenses results in a decrease in faculty and staff positions as well as a hiring freeze in all but necessary classes. There goes the additional class sections and open seats that were hoped for earlier. $1 million was cut from planned non-personal expenses, also. This would help with library resources, new equipment, new program initiatives, and more. Ouch! I'm sure there is much more, but the point was made. A medium amount is raised for the students to cover a large amount cut from the university. Both creating unhappy students with many complaints, reasonable and otherwise.

While I'm complaining, how about the elegant dormitories we all love. Not! The dorms do provide a great place to meet other people, allow easy travel to campus, and make it easier to wash clothes (when the machines work). However, is vomit in the bathrooms, blaring radios, and 3:00 am firedrills worth $805 per semester? I guess it depends on your life-style.

Books are another interesting part of a college student's financial situation. This is not a new complaint, just a continuing one. Paying around $200 is a normal, start-of-the-semester occurrence for most of us. Though I must admit, the new bookstore in Gemmell with its new system of book "shopping" is much less of a hassle than standing in the basement of Carlson trying to find the courses on the computer sheets filling out the little slip, then waiting for an eternity to hear your name called when finally in the book store itself.

The price of a good education can be fairly high, but believe me, the students of Clarion University are in the same boat as many of the other state universities. Our complaints are not new, and we're not alone in our concerns.

GRADUATE FEE

This year The Council of Trustees voted in a fifteen dollar graduate fee that will effect the graduates of May 1993 and on. As if we wern't charged for everything else, now we have to pay for our diplomas, too? Many students feel this fee is a kick-in-the-butt on the way out, and they don't like it. I agree that a graduate fee does seem unfair, but after looking into it I discovered that it is justifiable.

As with many other fees, the graduate fee is nothing new. In fact, Clarion is among eleven of fourteen universities to have such a fee. The other universities have fees ranging from five to thirty dollars, so our fifteen lies somewhere in the middle. If that doesn't make you feel any better just think students graduating from Penn State pay around thirty-five dollars. Ouch!

So what! It's still stupid to pay for a diploma. Well, the fee pays for more than the diploma. The fee covers the diploma jackets, postage to send the diplomas, the commencement program, possible speakers, and ticket expenses. Wow! When you think about it, all of these can get expensive when the university graduates 1200 to 1300 students a year.

So, the univervity always paid for that before. That's true, originally graduation expenses came out of the university's budget, but budget cuts have created a shortage of money. We've heard tht story before, unfortunately it is true for Clarion and many of the other state colleges.

There are some bonuses to the graduate fee. Over the next three years the fee will generate approximately $16,500. The extra money helped to lower the next tuition raise by making up for some budget restraints. If it were not for a little fifteen dollar fee, the tuition would go up $200 instead of $100. You just saved $85, sort of. Extra money could also be freed up for educational purposes. Every little bit helps.

Unlike many other fees and costs, the graduation fee is not expected to rise in the near future. That is what they say for now, in the future who knows?

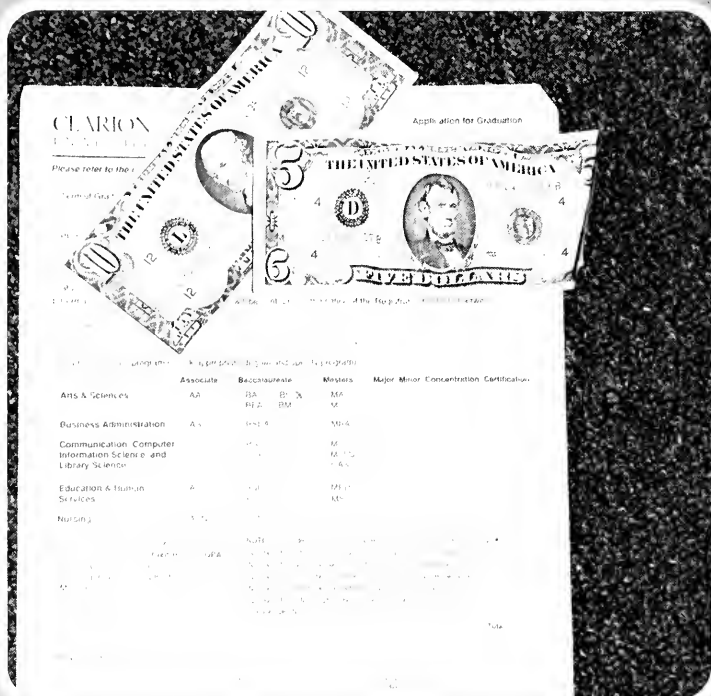

At least now I hope I've showed you that a graduate fee is nothing new and that your money pays for more than just your diploma. However, that doesn't mean you have to like it.

STUDYING

It's 3:00 am, your brain is fried, and in four hours you'll be getting ready to take the first of three tests piled on you today. Does this scenario sound somewhat familiar? Cramming, that night-before if not hour-before panic when one tries to jam a month's worth of information into a mind that was lost a long time ago, has been shown by research to not be very effective, but most of us do it anyway--it saves time.

Not all college students study this way. Some people do go over their notes during the week, keep up with the readings, and prepare study guides to help them along. It takes some effort and time, but in the long run they are probably better off. It lessens the stress and allows the brain to slowly and steadily "absorb" the information and keep it there longer.

How students engage in studying depends on the kind of test and on the individual. A quiz might only require a quick glance over the notes, while a final might call for a long stay in a study room with three cans of Coke. The NTE's (National Teachers' Exams) and GRE's (Graduate Record Exams) seem to require a good night's sleep and a lot of praying. It all varies. Different study techniques are utilized as well. Some students study in front of the television while munching on chips, others lock themselves up in their rooms and try to eliminate all distractions. It's a wide range with many variations between. Whatever the situation, I say, "To each their own," the way that works best for you is probably the way you should study.

Seminary Hall was founded by the Carrier Seminary in 1867. Its cornerstone was laid in 1868 and construction was completed in 1871 at a cost of $75,000 (including furnishings). Seminary Hall's days of service came to an end in 1968 when it was demolished.

Siler Complex

The Earl R. Siler Children's Learning Complex, which is just about where any Early Childhood and Elementary Education major spends their "free time," was accredited by the National Academy of Early Childhood Programs (NAECP) this year. The NAECP is the only national accreditation organization for early childhood programs in the United States. This honor ranks the complex as one of only 61 other programs to be accredited by NAECP in the entire state of Pennsylvania.

Department of Education

Clarion's Department of Education was up for renewal of its accreditation by the Pennsylvania Department of Education (PDE) as well as the National Center for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE). Along with written reports on the program teams from each organization visited the department and talked to students to verify the validity of the reports.

Clarion University

The University itself was reviewed by the Middle States Commission on Higher Education. A visitation by the evaluation team is scheduled for April 18-21. If the team gives Clarion a positive recommendation it would result in a 10 year renewal of our accreditation with periodic review due after five years.

CLARION CELEBRATES

125 years with the balancing act! "What am I going to do? I have seven chemistry laboratory reports to write, six pages to create for the yearbook, and I promised to play intramural volleyball tonight!" Well, your circumstances might not be to this extreme, but you understand the point. Students are here for an education first, but the extra activities help to keep our sanity. For those of you that have maintained your sanity, we congratulate you, but for those who lost it, don't worry you are not alone. Of course we cannot forget...

The moment you are welcomed in orientation, your new home is Clarion for the next four years. This might sound depressing, but think of all the new opppourtunities! You live with a roommate that you have never met before, travel to different parts of the states to visit with your new friends, and learn how to live without your parents looking over your shoulder. This new sense of freedom and independence may overwhelm you at first, but you will adjust. Trust us! Speaking of new beginnings...

125 years with the global perspective! The 1992-1993 school year has seen many events and changes globally and scholastically. Florida was destroyed by Hurricane Andrew, the United Nations building was bombed, and the Space Shuttle Explorer was launched to study the atmospheric destruction of the ozone layer. Closer to home, Clarion experienced the new Gemmell Student Complex, the $2.7 million shortfall for the 1993-1994 school year, and the possibility of building a new president's residence.
